

Maui Men With Flag Head Draft Parade

headed the procession which marched first to the national guard armory and later back to Fort Armstrong, where the men are being supplied with uniforms and equipment and given their first lessons as soldiers.

Due to the preparation of the local draft board, everything is working most smoothly. The second delegation of 86 men left by Wednesday night's Claudine. Of these 37 were from Hana, and 17 from Lahaina. Hana Grief Stricken

It was a tearful farewell that was accorded the Hana boys. When the Claudine left Hana Wednesday morning almost all of the population of the district was gathered at the landing to say farewell to its boys. It was the first time that many of the young fellows had ever been away from home, and the breaking of home ties in many instances was very hard.

The reverse was true at Lahaina, for instance. Here the people are more used to traveling, and the parting with their sons did not seem so irrevocable as it did to the Hana folk. While the big crowd waited at the Lahaina landing for the Claudine, there was a constant singing of patriotic songs and much laughter and cheering.

Big Send-Off At Kahului

Before the boys left the Wailuku armory last Saturday evening, they were each given a white armband bearing the word Maui in gold letters, to identify them until they were properly settled in the Oahu camp. Sheriff Crowell made the boys a little talk, in which he assured urged them to uphold the good name of Maui, and assuring them that the good wishes of everyone on Maui would go with them wherever duty called them. The boys were in high spirits.

Another big crowd gathered at the Kahului wharf to say good-bye to the boys.

The Japanese of central Maui were especially demonstrative in their fare well at Kahului, and each of the Japanese members of the delegation was presented with a wrist watch by their Puunene friends just before they boarded the steamer.

Smythe Heads Second Dunch

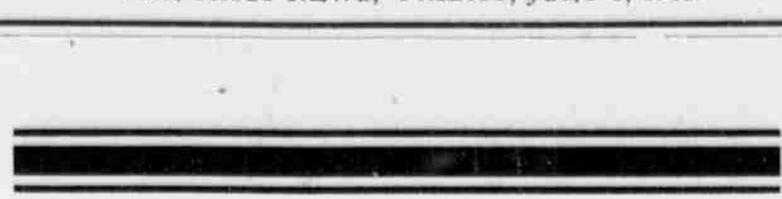

Sheriff Crowell entrusted the second delegation, which went down on Wednesday evening, to George Smythe, of Huelo. He was supplied with the record cards of his men, and a flag.

The third lot will leave tomorrow night from Kahului.

The following is a list of those who will leave tomorrow evening and of those who will leave next Wednesday.
